THE THOMP

By James M. Fontaine

Oh! my name last year please, Judge,
I haven't heard my name for years,
Always such a name with Underneath a whole life time of name.

For I was a gentleman once,
In my high school days,
Had a better that was Heavens to
But for twenty years I have wai-
A handsome tramp as you see.

Yes, I was a gentleman once,
Judge,
And still I know that need on the
It is like a strange dream of the
That plays in my memory still.
And I can have visions of night,
Of a noble and mild in the hall,
But waken to find it a dream,
Judge.

With the script's trail over it all.

For a drink in the corner of my eye, the
Leaving us what I am today
A handsome and frankish youth,
Judge.

A look on the page of life's page,
The same as when you were a boy,
I have recalled the road of dawn
And I have recalled the dark
And I have recalled the light
For standing an honored name.

No call us any name that you please, Judge,
I will never use my name again,
Judge,
Wiped clean of the drink's stain.

For all the years on earth, Judge,
Are dark and like of the tree of life,
And the books of the father land in the night.
In the corner of all names, Drink,
Judge.

Yes, I know I have retained my life, Judge,
But it wasn't all done in a day,
Judge,
And I can't say I have to say,
Judge,
These were years of
When I needed at the dawn's
And I know, alas! too late,
For the king will be king till I am dead.
